BAHEP welcomes the Houston office of the American Cancer Society

BAY AREA HOUSTON, TEXAS – Founded in 1913, the American Cancer Society employs more than 5,600 people whose mission is to save lives, celebrate lives, and lead the fight for a world without cancer. The Houston office of this national organization has recently joined the Bay Area Houston Economic Partnership.

BAHEP President Bob Mitchell said, “There are very few people whose lives have not been touched in some way by cancer. We strongly support the work of the American Cancer Society, an incredible organization that does so much, and welcome the local office to our organization.”

John Martin, director of Estate and Gift Planning, and Fiona Cunningham, senior director of Corporate Relations, represent the Houston office of the American Cancer Society within BAHEP. Martin commented, “Like the American Cancer Society, BAHEP is known for its great work that makes such a positive difference in people’s lives. I believe that together we can make an even greater difference, and I’m looking forward to building new relationships within BAHEP.”

Martin referred to the valuable information that can be found on the American Cancer Society’s website at www.cancer.org and concluded, “When cancer strikes, it hits from all sides. That’s why we’re committed to attacking cancer from every angle. With more than 100 years of experience and leadership, we are a global force, fighting all cancers on all fronts, across the U.S. and around the globe.

“With the help of millions of supporters, we launch breakthrough research, create empowering resources for people to outsmart cancer, enable local communities to support those affected, and convene powerful activists to create awareness and impact.”
