Jacob White Construction Co. takes lead in building “green” structures in Texas

BAY AREA HOUSTON, TEXAS – Jacob White Construction Co. is making a name for itself in the development and construction of LEED certified high performance structures in Texas. LEED is the acronym for Leadership in Energy and Environmental Design, and, according to Jeff Mickler, Jacob White Construction Co. president, his company has constructed more Platinum level green buildings yielding high quality working environments and sustainable returns for owners than anyone else in the region.

Bob Mitchell, president, Bay Area Houston Economic Partnership, stated, “Jacob White Construction Co. just completed another green building at 12941 Gulf Freeway at the corner of Beltway 8 and I-45. The building’s roof is the largest living (green) roof in Houston, offering further proof that Jeff Mickler’s LEED certified buildings are not only environmentally friendly but beautiful as well.”

JWCC was founded in 1992 and currently has 35 employees. “Our desire to be the best at whatever we engage has earned us a reputation of getting the jobs done right and within budget using a team approach with the owner. BAHEP also uses a team approach in its many efforts, which makes it an ideal partner as we both work to build a better Bay Area Houston,” Mickler said. He added, “The most compelling attribute that we have at Jacob White construction is the personnel who make up the company. Their dedication to detail and level of experience are our most valuable assets.”

Jacob White primarily serves the commercial, financial, medical, aviation and industrial markets in Texas with an emphasis on working with owners to develop a working plan and budget to fit their needs. JWCC both builds and rebuilds commercial / industrial architectural projects and supports and maintains a number of facilities for high visibility clients including Texas Children’s Hospital and Tenaris Corporation.

JWCC is headquartered at 2000 West Parkwood, Suite 100, in Friendswood, Texas. Call 281.286.6666 or visit www.jacobwhitecc.com for more details.
