Suntron Corporation joins Bay Area Houston Economic Partnership

BAY AREA HOUSTON, TX – The Bay Area Houston Economic Partnership has welcomed Suntron Corporation to its membership. “We are excited about adding Suntron to the BAHEP family,” commented Bob Mitchell, president of the partnership. “Their employees provide a very valuable service to many of the companies located in our area.”

Suntron is a corporation focused on the electronic manufacturing services industry delivering engineering and manufacturing solutions with capabilities to support the life cycle of complex products within the aerospace and defense, industrial, semiconductor capital equipment, network and telecommunications, and medical equipment market segments. Unlike many of its competitors, Suntron is focused on high-mix, low volume, and highly configurable customer products and designs.

Headquartered in Phoenix, Ariz., Suntron operates a number of full-service, high-tech facilities in North America with approximately 514,000 square feet for production, assembly and material storage and has approximately 1,500 employees. Locally, Suntron calls 1113 Gillingham Drive, Sugar Land, Texas, 77478 home. The corporation directly contributes its success in the marketplace to its ability to deliver and execute innovative solutions tailored to match individual requirements, while meeting the highest quality standards in the industry.

Notable among its recent awards and commendations, the 2007 North American Frost & Sullivan Competitive Strategy Leadership Award was presented to Suntron Corporation in the electronics manufacturing services market “for its unwavering ability to provide strategic solutions in an eminently competitive market and implement of an unique process for market support of medical device products.”

Hargopal Singh, the company’s president and CEO, commented on becoming a BAHEP member saying, “Suntron has joined the Bay Area Houston Economic Partnership to increase Suntron brand awareness while building personal business relationships and business synergies.”
