Warwick Construction Inc. joins partnership

BAY AREA HOUSTON, TX – The Bay Area Houston Economic Partnership has added Warwick Construction Inc. to its membership roster. The company was founded in 1999 and employs 100 people from its location at 365 FM 1959 in Houston.

Bob Mitchell, BAHEP president, stated, “Warwick Construction in just nine years has become the 10th largest national retail general contractor in the country. A company has to be doing many things well to generate such growth, and we are pleased to welcome them as new members.”

Warwick Construction specializes in retail tenant improvement build-outs and ground-up stand alone store construction. Ryan Murphy, the company’s business development manager, stated, “Warwick believes in excellence in performance. Our client relationships are key to our success thus far achieved by continually exceeding our clients’ expectations in customer service, workmanship and cost while building with integrity.”

The company has built across the nation since its inception working with almost 200 different national retailers. The work includes all areas of retail, as well as restaurants, commercial strip center construction, office build-outs, and medical facilities. Warwick’s typical client is a national retailer that opens and operates stores throughout the United States and Puerto Rico that will roll out annual volumes of 20-200 stores for construction. The company also houses designated teams that help broaden their portfolio beyond the retail sector, specializing in office build-outs, light industrial, medical, and even municipal projects.

Asked why Warwick Construction joined the partnership, Murphy replied, “BAHEP shares much of our corporate philosophy that includes integrity, team spirit and the belief that anything worth doing is worth doing well. Their reputation for excelling at economic development in the region is well known, and we are excited to join them in this work.”
